and the morale of their front-line troops has been sharply shaken. But resistance is stiffening at several points and on the evidence there is no reason to suppose otherwise than that the Communists still have plenty of man-power at their disposal. Nearly a year since the original aggression by the North Korean army, the war goes on. The time, in fact, has come to try and assess what has been accomplished by the conflict and where it has led. At first sight it looks like one of the most aimless conflicts in history. It has no plainly demonstrable significance. Korea is one of those odd. undistinguished corners of the globe lacking entirely in strategic value where one would have thought the people could have lived in peace. Yet in 12 months this pathetic peninsula has been ravaged, its cities shattered and much of its population made homeless. The men of sixteen nations have fought in an unceasing struggle. Families thousands of miles away who probably had never previously heard of the existence of Korea, have been bereaved. And for what? Today the United Nations forces are back again in the area where hostillties beganabout the 88th Parallel. Korea is still divided into two. The object of both sides is still to make it one, either by force, or by imposing the conditions necessary to give the people of the country a free choice. Has all the pain and suffering, then, been useless?.. The answer is an emphatic

1945, the free nations have combined to resist an act of unprovoked aggression from Communism - and that is of enormous significance. The first occasion was when the Russians tried to make Anglo-American-French hold on Berlin untenable. Had that not been frustrated by the Anglo-American alrlift Western Europe might now have been Communist. Similarly, had the United Nations allowed Korea to go by default, the Communist menace to the rest of South-East' Asia would have immensely boosted. Most of the peoples on the borders of China would have been prepared to bow the knee to Moscow. Having twice received sharp rebuff, Kremlin leaders may pause before again throwing themselves out on a limb. Forgetting the Wedemeyers and MacArthurs, world sacrifices in Korea may have prevented World War III. The struggle is far from over, but there can be little doubt of the outcome. If the Chinese launch new attacks from behind the Iron Curtain, they-will only batter their heads against an Iron Wall. They do nomore today, they who boasted they would throw the UN army into the sea, than lose face and all else while getting nowhere. Once again boldness is reaping its reward. When nations stand firm they are half-way to victory. When they appease or lose grip they are near to defeat. Another good result is the evidence that in spite of early misunderstandings, Britain and America are again drawing closer together. The British case on Hongkong and Malaya is better understood in the United States. A new trend in American public opinion was guided by the stand made, by the glorious Gloucesters. Not for the first time the British fighting man-in Korea as elsewhere—has proved to be Britain's most effective Ambassador.

GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL SERVICE TO BE RELAYED RADIO HONGKONG

The magnificent stand of the 1st Battalion the Gloudestershire Regiment on the Imjin River in Korea in April has been acclaimed; all over the world as one of the finest and bravest actions fought by the United Nations forces in the campaign. The words of Brigadier Thomas Brodie, Commander of the British 29th Brigade,-"Only the Gloucesters could have done it"-are a worthy tribute to those who took part in the fierce five-day engagement against tremendous odds.

A Service of Commemoration and Intercession for the Battalion is to be held in Gloucester Cathedral on Monday, and will be heard over Radio .Hongkong as a direct relay from the BBC at 7.30 p.m. Hongkong Summer time the same evening.

.Those who heard the recital given by that talented young pianist, Miss Beulah Kwok, during April this year will be interested to note that she will broadcast another recital on Tuesday at 9.11 p.m. This time it will be an all Bach programme. Miss Kwok will play Three Inventions-No. 13 in A Major, No. 8 in F Major, and No. 14 in B Flat Major, Prelude and Fugue No. 10 in E Minor, and French Suite in E Major.

For generations "The Swiss Family Robinson" has been at once the butt of paradists and one of the most universally loved books from childhood onwards -and now the BBC presents a radio version of the adventures of the resourceful Robinsons on that fabulous isle where the kindly fruits of the earth burgeon, regardless of latitude, in and out of season, and where, if the lion does not lie down with the lamb, at least the penguin parades with the flamingo.

John Keir Cross has reconstructed the story of the Robinson Family as a four-episode serial, with Eric Portman playing the part of Father Robinson, and the first part may be heard by listeners to Radio Hongkong tonight at 9.15 p.m.

On Monday at 9.11 p.m. Radio Hongkong is repeating the feature called "A Star Danced"-The Story of Gertrude Lawrence. This is in response to a number of requests from listeners who missed a portion of the feature as a result of an unavoidable. break in transmission at the time when the programme was last broadcast.

The Second Test Match between England and South Africa begins at Lord's on Thursday, and a commentary on a portion of the play will be relayed from the BBG direct on Thursday and Saturday evenings from 9.15 to 9.30. On Friday a description of play, recorded earlier in the evening, may be heard from 10.15. to 10.30 p.m.

Design for Leaving

FIERCE OPPONENTS when they meet in competition, Gerry Murray (left) and Toughie Brasuhn are just like other mothers as they prepare to give sons. Mike and Billy, lessons.

BEDTIME for Mike means a story before he falls asleep probably to dream that he is speeding around a track, single handedly crushing all opposition as his mom applauds.

MOM'S SKATES are all that matter to Mike as family packs and prepares to leave on a lour. The Gammons always travel in their own car so they can do some eightestelms.

NEW Hatfield and McCoy feud appears to be in the making. Whizzing around the banked Roller Derby track in New York these days, practising blocks and jams, are two fighting youngsters of battling familles. They are little Billy Monte, 5, and speedy Mike Gammon, 7. Their mothers are Gerry Marray n Gammon and Toughle Brasuhn Monte, who nightly thrill species tators with their rough-and-tumble bouts. Both fathers also are top flight skating stars.

Living up to his parents' expectations, Mike has been clocked around the oval in 12.5 seconds. Average skater's time is 12.

Besides being an exceptional skater, Mike is a natural athlete, excelling in baseball and swimming. But his first flove is the banked boards, where he can square off with Billy and others.

Although mother is a 125-pound flash of dynamite on the track, she's just a homemaker when she's out of the spotlight-"Home" is a hotel room at present, for schedules keep them constantly on the go. However, she still finds time to mend the family's clothes and teach her boy how to skate.

Veteran skating couples like the Montes and the Gammons are well paid now that the sport has really caught on. They usually average as much as $20,000 a year. This sum is a far cry from the pin money they earned 12 years ago when Gerry Murray joined one of two teams, fighting not only on the track but against a rising cost of living, day after day, as the Roller Derby jumped from city to city.

PRACTISING MAYHEM on wheels, Gerry and Toughle battle for the advantage as they flash around a turn, each seeking to spill the other and lead the pack for try at points.

DERBY STARS must be a combination of speed, figure and trick statute. They are less over spilled teammules and opponents. After deciding it a never to have to be able to maintain their balance under the those trying conditions and the same and alley sat expert polatics in acrebalics from mothers.

·His agents are known to have penetrated the screen around Top Secret projects on radar and guided missiles. And there may be more to come; security investigations into his undercover activities are far from complete.

It was Yakovlev's highly professional planning that permitted untrained spies like Britain's Dr. Klaus Fuchs and America's David Greenglass to betray bomb secrets to Soviet couriers without raising suspicion.

It was his tight grasp on every thread of the spy-network that enabled these couriers-men like the Americans Harry Gold and Julius Rosenberg-to operate for years over a wide field,

In the bar

THE first recorded act in the astonishing sequence clonk-and-dagger events set in motion by the Sixth Man was staged in the bar of a small restaurant on New York's noisy 34th Street.

On a mild March evening in 1944, two men, an American and a Russian, were drinking after in Bolshevism, followed by five being introduced by a third man who had then left.

podgy American was Harry Gold, Communist and professional Soviet spy. His slim, fresh - faced companion was Yakovley, newly appointed director of the spy ring for which Gold served as courier.

How has this greatest of all sea searches been made? Why can't the Affray found?

It all started at noon on April 17 when "Fosams" the Navy's name for Flag Office Submarines — telephoned the cryptic message "Subsmash Two" to the operations room in Admiralty House at Portsmouth.

It was the signal for prearranged submarine rescue operations to swing into action.

The most practical styles for these raincoats are the three-way swagger and the cape.

Another suggestion, this time from an English firm is the use of rubberised cottons for raincoat chic. # MADAM—you are envied by the FRENCH

DRITISH women who envy French women their high D fashioned Paris models, and Americans their "cute little dresses," will be surprised to know that British Utility clothes, especially coats and suits, are very much envied by French visitors.

Paris has nothing to compare with these reasonably priced by the model houses in Paris. The clothes in the shops are also expensive, so most of them have their clothes made by "a little woman round the corner."

AMERICAN CLOTHES are cheaper, but they are thrown together and don't wear. So Americana in London are buying British Utility tailored suits and classic coats.

FRENCH WOMEN, from the fashion centre of the world, are delighted with the more "dressy" suits. The only criticism I have heard is the dreary name given to them. (Whoever was responsible for the name "Utility"?)

A NEW YORK beauty expert gave this advice to women in London recently:-

"Once your weight is down, start exercising. Holp the fat off your scat by giving it a good and hard bang every time you pass a brick wall."

Perfume Do's And Dont's

The "wearing of perfume brings out as many differences in women as the choice of it. Many have their pet ideas. Some pour a few drops on the brasslere, others touch the hems of their frocks, especially if they are going to dine and dance. Then there is the behind-the-ear addict. In some places in Europe where gallant gentlemen kiss a lady's hand it is a custom to friction it into the backs of the fingers.

Never put perfume on your hair unless the silky mop has just been shampooed because the glandular exudations of the scalp will change its character. "Will the scent last, will it stay with me?" is the frequent inquiry heard by the salesgirl at the perfume counter. That is not the point. Better a sweet floretted fragrance that must be renewed than a violent one that gives you little pleasure. Should; it happen that you have to keep a weather eye on the good looks budget, you console yourself with toiler water which is less expensive and can be used as invishly, as you desire. Reep it in an atomiser. Spray your chest, arms and shoulders after your bath, then driction the flesh briskly. You will walk in an enticing odour all the day long. A fragrance that can be used as a bath oil and for a perfuma as well in a practical idea. In

Spool & String Puzzle

By MILDRED L. KING

DRESENT your friends with mysterious apparatus illustrated here and ask them to get the two reels on one loop of string. They'll hate to give up and ask for your help but they'll probably have to.

The apparatus is made from a strip of stiff cardboard about three by 12 inches. Three holes are cut in it as shown. These must be considerably smaller than the size of the spools. Thread the string through the holes and the spools on the string as pictured in the dia-being pulled through the end out and the two spools will be holes. Print "APPARATUS on one big loop which makes DX?9" on the cord just to make you and "APPARATUS DX?9" it more mysterious.

To get the two spools on one loop you must follow these instructions carefully. Pull the centre loop marked C as far down as it will come and slide the right side spool through the big loop. Then push the centre loop through the right hand hole being careful not to twist the string. Next pass this loop over the right hand bead or stopper and bring it back TOUR sense of smell is be-

Off Finesse Put Whenever Possible

By OSWALD JACOBY

AN expert hatea to stake his contract on a mere finesse when any better chance is available. South's play of rather shaky slain contract shown today is a good example.

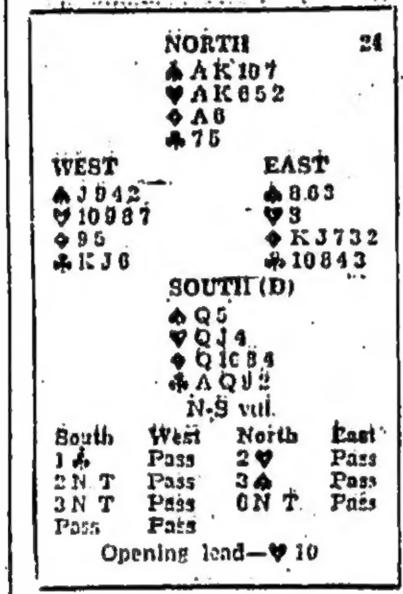

West opened the ten of hearls, and dummy won with the king, Declarer immediately returned dunmy's low diamond. His object was to set up an additional diamond trick, if possible, without tosing control of the suft.

East put up the king of dramonds at once and returned the three of clubs. At this stage Bouth was sure of five hearts, three spades, two diamonds and a club. A successful, club (Inceser would therefore give him the twelfth

Nevertheless, South put up the ace of blubs, refusing the finese. He saw that he could eventually try a finesse of dummy's ten of apades for the twelfth trick - and one finesse was as good as another, In the meantime, the juck of diamonds might drop; or perhaps somebody would be squeezed.

South's reasoning was quite proper. The spade fittesse would have worked, if needed, and the club finesse would have lost. As it happened, however, no finesse was neetled, since West was squeezed.

After taking the ace of clubs, South cashed the queen and jack of hearts: He next entered dunmy with the ace of diamonds to take the nee of hearts and the last heart. On these cards, South discarded two clubs, while West disearded the jack of chibs.

South got back to his hand with the queen of spades to lead the queen_of_diamonds...lle, hoped that the look would fall, but, it didn't.

However, East find been forced to aliandon lits clubs and ohe spade in order to save the diamonds. West had to distord on this diamond; and, since he couldn't afford to release the king of clubs, had to part with a spade.

This toki South that all the spacies would drop, so he just took tile top spades and made the fulmiling trick with the ten spades.

INTELLIGENCE TEST SOLUTION:

It is guite easy to solve this Test by trial: o m.p.h. is the harmonic mean of 4 m.p.h. and 12 m.p.h.: if it is assumed that these are flustier's walking and cycling speeds. Breakaway's speeds will be m.p.h. and 14 m.p.h., and the harmonic mean of these is 8.4 m.p.h. So there's the answer
